BAINÉ QUIZZED BY COMMITTEE

Told That Cabinet Discussed Oil Leasing Policy.

FALL HIS INFORMANT, HE SAYS

Director of Federal Bureau of Mines Declares Attorneys Outside the Department Held the Leasing Legal, Efforts to Connect Private Secretary Slomp With "Leaks" From Committee Fails.

Washington, Feb. 26.—C. Bascom Slomp, secretary to President Coolidge, and Director Baine of the federal bureau of mines were among the witnesses quizzed by the senate committee investigating the naval oil land leases.

Slomp was questioned about his recent trip to Palm Beach, Fla., where Albert B. Fall, former secretary of the interior, and E. B. McLean, publisher of the Washington Post, were located that time. Efforts of the probers to establish a connection with the trip with alleged "leaks" from the committee failed.

Slomp said he met both Fall and McLean there between Dec. 16 and Jan. 14. The secretary told the probers he advised Fall and McLean to "make a clean breast of everything" to the senate committee and straighten things out.

Charles P. Lyddae vice president of the Federal-American National bank here, disclosed from bank records that McLean had a balance at that bank of $2,200 at the time he, according to McLean's testimony, loaned Albert Fall, former secretary of interior, $100,000. McLean said he wrote checks to that amount for Fall, who returned them uncashed later and they were destroyed.

Director Baine testified that Secretary Fall informed him the plan to buy storage tanks at Pearl Harbor in return for royalty oil was discussed at a cabinet meeting and that Attorney General Daugherty "raised no objection to it." "My impression was that the general policy of leasing had been discussed, either at cabinet meetings or after," Director Baine continued, "and that the attorney general had approved them informally. This was two and a half years ago and I can't remember details as to the conversation."

The witness continued: "The only profit Mr. Doheny could make in this deal, we thought, was in the possibility it gave him of using one or two of his tank ships, which would be otherwise tied up."

Director Baine said also that there were attorneys outside the department who held the leasing legal. Senator Walsh asked him to furnish copies of such opinions.

Baine testified that representatives of several oil companies had urged that the interior department get the opinion of Attorney General Daugherty as to the legality of the oil tankage project before a contract was given to the Doheny interests. "My understanding was that the department of the interior considered the leasing legal and that this was the opinion of the navy department's solicitor, the judge advocate general," Baine said.

Senator Walsh asked what were the objections to asking the attorney general for an opinion. "The secretary of the interior had executed a contract," Mr. Baine said. "To ask the attorney general for the opinion then would throw doubts on the validity of the contract. Then there was a second objection. Before the contract was made Secretary Fall took the position that the solicitor of the department had called the transaction legal and that it was not mandatory to seek the attorney general for further opinion."

HERE AND THERE

William Florence, 61, janitor of a school at Dayton, Ky., was killed when he fell 35 feet to the ground from a third-floor window he was cleaning.

Walter Hoppe, billiard champion, was granted a divorce in New York from his wife, Alice Beatrice Hoppe. A jury decided Mrs. Hoppe had been guilty of misconduct.

Delegates representing 100,000 dock workers in Great Britain accepted terms offered by employers to end the national dock strike.

M. J. Connor, professional gambler, and two women were killed when Connor drove his automobile into a freight train on a grade crossing in St. Louis.

Miss Werlein has been designated by Will H. Hays to revolutionize the motion picture theaters of the South into community centers for the public and to aid audiences to an appreciation of better pictures.

COX IN THE RACE

His Formal Declaration of Candidacy Is Filed at Columbus.

Columbus, Feb. 26.—Former Governor James M. Cox, Democratic nominee for president in 1920, formally entered the race for the 1924 nomination. His declaration of candidacy, authorizing candidates for delegates in his behalf to the national convention, and designating Robert S. Hayes, Columbus, to act as his representative, was filed by Hayes with Secretary of State Brown. Hayes also filed, signed by himself, formal declaration entering Cox's name in the Ohio preferential primary, April 1, and declaration of former Governor James E. Campbell of Columbus as second choice candidate for the Democratic nomination.

Two more Democratic presidential candidates—William Gibbs McAdoo and United States Senator James Reed of Missouri—probably will file declarations this week.

David L. Rockwell, national McAdoo manager, announced that a full list of candidates for delegates to the Democratic national convention pledged to the support of William G. McAdoo, for the presidential nomination, will be placed in the field in Ohio this week.

TO FIGHT PROPOSED PHONE RATE BOOST

Movement for a Statewide Survey Under Way.

Columbus, Feb. 26.—Hearing of the Ohio Bell Telephone company's application for a statewide increase in long distance toll rates was resumed before the public utilities commission.

It is likely that the entire week will be taken up with the company's explanation of why the Ohio Bell pays the parent company, the American Telephone and Telegraph company, 4½ per cent of its total revenues. Phone officials say they will show where the Ohio Bell gets value received for the payment and why the arrangement is of benefit to its patrons.

Toledo, Dayton, Canton and Akron, where rate cases are pending, are represented at the hearing. John M. Lewis, Columbus city councilman, is representing the State Citizens' association, Inc., which has recently been formed to fight higher telephone rates.

The movement for a statewide survey of proposed increased telephone rates and for co-operation of cities in combating the increases was incited by City Attorney Leach of Columbus. He said: "The state of Ohio should take a hand in combating these unjustified rates, because many small communities would be unable to contribute much."

Ambassador to Belgium.

Washington, Feb. 26.—President Coolidge sent to the senate the nomination of William Phillips, now undersecretary of state, to be American ambassador to Belgium. The Belgian post has been vacated by Henry P. Fletcher, recently nominated by the president as ambassador to Rome.

WOULD INCREASE PRISONERS' PAY

Welfare Director Harper Would Aid Convicts' Families.

CRITICISES OHIO CRIMINAL LAW

Points Out That In Spite of Increased Penalties Imposed by the Legislature in 1921 Crime Has Increased. Claims State Paid Too Much For Grafton Site For the New Insane Asylum—Recommendations Made.

Columbus, Feb. 26.—State Welfare Director John E. Harper in his annual report to Governor Donahey recommended that state prisoners able to work should receive 5 to 10 cents an hour for their labor to keep their families from suffering economically.

The director says working prisoners now receive from 1 to 5 cents an hour. The legislature appropriated $110,000 for this purpose at this rate. In adjusting the pay under the proposed increase, Harper would determine it by the number of dependents on the convict.

Criminal punishment laws as revised by the legislature in 1921 are criticised by the director, who declares that in spite of the increased penalty for robbery from 1 to 15 years, the number of robbers in the penitentiary has increased.

The Norwood law, which compels common pleas judges to impose minimum sentences, after serving which the prisoner is eligible for parole, is making for injustice in comparative punishment, according to Director Harper. Under this law, he says, small forgeries are punished almost as severely as second degree murder; attempted burglary often more severely than actual burglary. One man, under this law, was sentenced to serve a year for shooting to kill, while another received two years for carrying concealed weapons.

Such examples are possible because there are 114 judges interpreting these laws, two seldom having the same point of view, Harper holds. The result of these two laws has been a large prison population with no apparent diminution in crime, it is pointed out. The only remedy lies in a return to the indeterminate sentence law, in the director's opinion.

Installation of more industries in state penal and correctional institutions is recommended by Harper.

Mr. Harper also indicates in his report that the state paid entirely too much for the farms totaling 1,043 acres near Grafton as a site for a new institution for the insane. The state paid an average price of $172 an acre for the site purchased in August, 1923, while in the following May Mr. Harper was able to option 1,300 acres adjacent at an average of less than $140 an acre. Even at this price it was held to be excessive by Mr. Harper, who refused to close the deal. In his report he says: "That we were right in our conclusion that prices of land optioned were excessive was proven a few months later, when a farm included in one tract optioned at an average of $130 an acre failed to bring $40 an acre at forced sale."

The issue is brought out by Director Harper in explaining why he has not spent the $200,000 which was available for the purchase of a site for a new institution for feeble-minded. He calls attention to the fact that the appropriation was for lands only, and to buy land without funds provided for the erection and equipment of buildings would not relieve the present demand for additional room for feeble-minded patients.

May Halt Sale of Stock.

New York, Feb. 26.—Attorney General Sherman obtained an order from Justice Wagner directing the Tomadelli Electric corporation to show cause in the supreme court on Feb. 27 why it should not be restrained from selling any more of its stock to the public. Approximately 20,000 shares of the stock already have been sold for $400,000, the investigators said. The principal owner is Juan J. Tomadelli, who, according to a company prospectus, has invented a process for drawing dynamic energy from the air. Investigators reported that nothing shown to them indicated that the apparatus had a possibility of practical application or commercial value.

Coaster Killed.

Cleveland, Feb. 26.—Coasting coast the life of Anna Hladky, 10, who lost control of her sled and crashed into a tree while sliding at Valley View village. She died in a local hospital.

WALLACE FARRINGTON

Governor of Hawaii Is a Native of Maine.

DOINGS IN OHIO

Minister Missing.

Mansfield, O., Feb. 26.—Rev. J. Harold Johnson, until recently pastor of Pilgrim church here, is missing. Johnson left Feb. 13 supposedly to attend a missionary conference in New York. "I hope he will come back," Mrs. Johnson said. "We have a daughter 19 months old. When he left he kissed me and said, 'I hope everything will come out all right.' Johnson resigned recently and was presented with a purse by his congregation with which to attend the mission conference."

Eight-Hour Day Not General.

Cleveland, Feb. 26.—Reports that the eight-hour day is an established fact in the steel industry is insidious propaganda, C. C. Claherty, head of the steel industry executive council, said. "More than 35 per cent of the employees of the United States Steel corporation are not on an eight-hour day basis," Claherty said. "Only those men employed in the continuous processes of production are working eight hours a day."

Hits Village Liquor Courts.

Cincinnati, Feb. 26.—State Prohibition Commissioner McDonald announced here that Ohio village liquor courts will be abolished and all liquor cases will be brought into municipal courts if Ohio legislature will grant enough money to employ straight salaried state dry agents. He said Governor Donahey and he will ask the legislature to appropriate the money.

All Found Guilty.

Dayton, O., Feb. 26.—Seventy-five persons arraigned for operating slot machines other than those bearing the Morris stamp were found guilty by Judge William G. Powell in police court. Three days were granted by the court in which to file motion for a new trial and notice was given by Walter Connors, attorney, that the case will be carried to the higher courts.

Two Fatally Burned.

Cleveland, Feb. 26.—A 5-year-old girl and a woman are dead here from burns. Geraldine Kallow, 5, died at a hospital after her clothing had caught fire from a gas heater. Mrs. Viola Washington, 57, died from burns received when her dress caught fire at an open grate.

Two Injured.

Crestline, O., Feb. 26.—A passenger train ran into a switch engine in the yards here. The engineer on the passenger train and the fireman on the switch engine were slightly injured. No passengers were hurt.

Found Mother's Body.

Uhrichsville, O., Feb. 26.—The body of Mrs. Lucy Carrothers, 71, widow, was found hanging in the doorway between the kitchen and dining room of her home by her daughter.

Back Broken.

Middleport, O., Feb. 26.—Stanley Whittington, 26, whose back was broken three years ago in a mine accident at Rutland, is dead after a brave fight for life.

Labor Leader For Vice President.

Cleveland, Feb. 26.—Candidates of Major L. Barry for vice president of the United States on the Democratic ticket will be announced formally here at a mass meeting called by International Printing Pressmen and Assistants Union of North America.

INHERITANCE TAX GIVEN A BOOST

House Votes to Amend the Revenue Bill.

REGULAR REPUBLICANS LOSE

Democrats Join With Insurgents In Supporting the Amendment—Deductions For State Estate Taxes Proposed In Another Amendment Adopted—Heavier Tax on Large Gifts Sought.

Washington, Feb. 26.—The house amended the new tax reduction bill by voting for an increase in the inheritance tax.

The amendment was offered by Representative C. William Ramshear (Rep., Iowa) and was bitterly opposed by Republican organization leaders. The vote was 190 to 110, most of the Democrats joining Republican insurgents in support of the amendment, which raises the maximum rate from 25 to 40 per cent. The amendment would take 1 per cent of $10,000 estates and 40 per cent of $10,000,000 estates.

Another amendment, which would allow deductions for state estate taxes up to 25 per cent of the amount of the tax imposed by the federal government, also was adopted. A proposal to impose a graduated tax on the tax exempt securities of an estate was lost on a teller's vote, 141 to 132.

Progressives are demanding a heavier tax than 10 per cent on $1,000,000 gifts, which Chairman Green of the ways and means committee proposes. Representative Clancy of Michigan will attempt to have the 5 per cent tax on automobile trucks and accessories cut in half.

Representative Garner of Texas, ranking Democrat on the committee, has announced that he will oppose any further tax cuts. He fears the reduction may go too far and leave the treasury without sufficient revenue.

Senator Wheeler's attempt to bring his resolution before the senate, demanding an investigation of Attorney General Harry Daugherty's administration of the department of justice, was blocked by Senator Wallis of Ohio, who objected to its consideration because another subject was under debate. The Ohio senator said he did not desire to postpone consideration of the resolution, but wanted it taken up in a "proper and orderly fashion."

ALLEGES EXTORTION PLOT

Young Woman Kills Two Men In Gun Battle at Her Home.

Cleveland, Feb. 26.—Mike Marino, 35, and Rafael Tranco, 36, are dead, and Tony Savajd, 34, is under arrest, following a gun battle with Mrs. Nettie Anelli, 19. According to Mrs. Anelli, the shooting was the culmination of a blackmail plot against her father, her husband and two roomers. She said Marino, Tranco and Savajd gave them until last night to accede to their demands for money and threatened violence if they refused to comply. She said the three men crept toward her house on their hands and knees and fired a volley of shots through a side window. She responded with two shots. When one of the men began pounding at a side door she opened fire through the panels and the shooting outside stopped. Police found Marino and Tranco lying on the sidewalk in front of the house.

Vessel Liqueur Laden.

Norfolk, Va., Feb. 26.—The three-masted schooner G. H. Murray of Cuban registry, with a cargo of 2,000 cases of whisky and 6,000 cases of grain alcohol, was towed into Hampton Roads in distress by the British steamer Centa, and is being held under guard pending decision as to her status. She was picked up off Cape Hatteras after being disabled in a storm.

Three Killed at Crossing.

Ravenna, O., Feb. 26.—Three victims of the auto-train crash, which occurred at a crossing near Wayland, were identified as Mr. and Mrs. Loren Swigart and their 3-year-old daughter, Donna, of Freedom Station. A train crashed into the auto in which they were riding, between Newton Falls and Ravenna.

Rag Mill Burns.

Middletown, O., Feb. 26.—Sreere's rag mill at Franklin, six miles north of here, burned to the ground with a loss estimated at $30,000.

15,000,000 IN USE

Motor Vehicles Outnumber Railroad Cars and Engines 6 to 1.

Washington, Feb. 26.—Government officials announced that motor vehicles in use throughout the United States outnumber steam railroad passenger and freight cars and locomotives by a ratio of 6 to 1. This estimate is based on a census of railroad stock for all steam roads in the United States at the close of 1923. The total number of motor vehicles in use in the country at the present time is approximately 15,000,000. The railroad census shows that there are 2,400,000 freight cars, 57,000 passenger coaches and 68,000 locomotives in use at the beginning of 1924, or a total of 2,525,000 units in steam transportation.

A new record was established in 1923 with the exportation from the United States and Canada of 221,816 automobiles and trucks, valued at $139,849,020, according to a report issued by the department of commerce.

To Be Continued In Office.

Washington, Feb. 26.—Walter L. Cohen, negro Republican leader of Louisiana, will be continued in office by President Coolidge as comptroller of customs at New Orleans, despite the recent senate rejection of his nomination. An agreement was reached at a conference between the president, Chairman Adams of the Republican committee, Cohen and other Republican leaders, that no other nomination for the comptrollership would be sent to the senate during the present session of congress.

THIRTEEN MILLIONS

Spent by Government on Federal Aid Highways in Ohio.

Washington, Feb. 26.—The United States government has spent $13,349,513.64 on federal aid highways in Ohio up to Dec. 31, 1923, according to Thomas H. MacDonald, chief of the bureau of federal roads. In all $17,344,359.31 has been apportioned from federal funds for Ohio purposes. There remains in the treasury $3,994,845.67 allotted for Ohio but unexpended, while outstanding obligations in excess of payments made total $3,146,786.13. The unobligated balance in the treasury for Ohio roads totals $48,059.54.

For new highways throughout the country the government has appropriated $452,000,000 for the fiscal years between 1917 and 1924. Of this sum $291,957,477.04 actually has been paid to states up to Jan. 31 this year. In the treasury there remains $70,636,234.56 to the credit of the various states which has not been obligated.

Wilson's Will.

Washington, Feb. 26.—Woodrow Wilson left virtually his entire estate to his wife during her lifetime, under terms of his will filed for probate here. Margaret W. Wilson, his only unmarried daughter, is to receive $2,500 annually as long as she remains unwed. Upon Mrs. Wilson's death the unexpended part of the estate shall revert to his three daughters, share and share alike.

Tomadelli, who, according to a company prospectus, has invented a process for drawing dynamic energy from the air. Investigators reported that nothing shown to them indicated that the apparatus had a possibility of practical application or commercial value.

Coaster Killed.

Cleveland, Feb. 26.—Coasting east the life of Anna Hladky, 10, who lost control of her sled and crashed into a tree while sliding at Valley View village. She died in a local hospital.

WALLACE FARRINGTON

Governor of Hawaii Is a Native of Maine.

DOINGS IN OHIO

Minister Missing.

Mansfield, O., Feb. 26.—Rev. J. Harold Johnson, until recently pastor of Pilgrim church here, is missing. Johnson left Feb. 13 supposedly to attend a missionary conference in New York. "I hope he will come back," Mrs. Johnson said. "We have a daughter 19 months old. When he left he kissed me and said, 'I hope everything will come out all right.' Johnson resigned recently and was presented with a purse by his congregation with which to attend the mission conference."

Eight-Hour Day Not General.

Cleveland, Feb. 26.—Reports that the eight-hour day is an established fact in the steel industry is insidious propaganda, C. C. Claherty, head of the steel industry executive council, said. "More than 35 per cent of the employees of the United States Steel corporation are not on an eight-hour day basis," Claherty said. "Only those men employed in the continuous processes of production are working eight hours a day."

Hits Village Liquor Courts.

Cincinnati, Feb. 26.—State Prohibition Commissioner McDonald announced here that Ohio village liquor courts will be abolished and all liquor cases will be brought into municipal courts if Ohio legislature will grant enough money to employ straight salaried state dry agents. He said Governor Donahey and he will ask the legislature to appropriate the money.

All Found Guilty.

Dayton, O., Feb. 26.—Seventy-five persons arraigned for operating slot machines other than those bearing the Morris stamp were found guilty by Judge William G. Powell in police court. Three days were granted by the court in which to file motion for a new trial and notice was given by Walter Connors, attorney, that the case will be carried to the higher courts.

Two Fatally Burned.

Cleveland, Feb. 26.—A 5-year-old girl and a woman are dead here from burns. Geraldine Kallow, 5, died at a hospital after her clothing had caught fire from a gas heater. Mrs. Viola Washington, 57, died from burns received when her dress caught fire at an open grate.

Two Injured.

Crestline, O., Feb. 26.—A passenger train ran into a switch engine in the yards here. The engineer on the passenger train and the fireman on the switch engine were slightly injured. No passengers were hurt.

Found Mother's Body.

Uhrichsville, O., Feb. 26.—The body of Mrs. Lucy Carrothers, 71, widow, was found hanging in the doorway between the kitchen and dining room of her home by her daughter.

Back Broken.

Middleport, O., Feb. 26.—Stanley Whittington, 56, whose back was broken three years ago in a mine accident at Rutland, is dead after a brave fight for life.

Labor Leader For Vice President.

Cleveland, Feb. 26.—Candidacy of Major L. Barry for vice president of the United States on the Democratic ticket will be announced formally here at a mass meeting called by International Printing Pressmen and Assistants Union of North America.

INHERITANCE TAX GIVEN A BOOST

House Votes to Amend the Revenue Bill.

REGULAR REPUBLICANS LOSE

Democrats Join With Insurgents in Supporting the Amendment—Deductions For State Estate Taxes Proposed in Another Amendment Adopted—Heavier Tax on Large Gifts Sought.

Washington, Feb. 26.—The house amended the new tax reduction bill by voting for an increase in the inheritance tax.

The amendment was offered by Representative C. William Ramseyer (Rep., Iowa) and was bitterly opposed by Republican organization leaders. The vote was 190 to 110, most of the Democrats joining Republican insurgents in support of the amendment, which raises the maximum rate from 25 to 40 per cent. The amendment would take 1 per cent of $10,000 estates and 40 per cent of $10,000,000 estates.

Another amendment, which would allow deductions for state estate taxes up to 25 per cent of the amount of the tax imposed by the federal government, also was adopted. A proposal to impose a graduated tax on the tax exempt securities of an estate was lost on a teller's vote, 141 to 132.

Progressives are demanding a heavier tax than 10 per cent on $1,000,000 gifts, which Chairman Green of the ways and means committee proposes.

Representative Clancy of Michigan will attempt to have the 5 per cent tax on automobile trucks and accessories cut in half.

Representative Garner of Texas, ranking Democrat on the committee, has announced that he will oppose any further tax cuts. He fears the reduction may go too far and leave the treasury without sufficient revenue.

Senator Wheeler's attempt to bring his resolution before the senate, demanding an investigation of Attorney General Harry Daugherty's administration of the department of justice, was blocked by Senator Wallis of Ohio, who objected to its consideration because another subject was under debate. The Ohio senator said he did not desire to postpone consideration of the resolution, but wanted it taken up in a "proper and orderly fashion."

ALLEGES EXTORTION PLOT

Young Woman Kills Two Men In Gun Battle at Her Home.

Cleveland, Feb. 26.—Mike Marino, 35, and Rafaelo Tranco, 36, are dead, and Tony Savajd, 34, is under arrest, following a gun battle with Mrs. Nettie Anelli, 19. According to Mrs. Anelli, the shooting was the culmination of a blackmail plot against her father, her husband and two roomers. She said Marino, Tranco and Savajd gave them until last night to accede to their demands for money and threatened violence if they refused to comply. She said the three men crept toward her house on their hands and knees and fired a volley of shots through a side window. She responded with two shots. When one of the men began pounding at a side door she opened fire through the panels and the shooting outside stopped. Police found Marino and Tranco lying on the sidewalk in front of the house.

Vessel Liqueur Laden.

Norfolk, Va., Feb. 26.—The three-masted schooner G. H. Murray of Cuban registry, with a cargo of 2,000 cases of whisky and 6,000 cases of grain alcohol, was towed into Hampton Roads in distress by the British steamer Ceuta, and is being held under guard pending decision as to her status. She was picked up off Cape Hatteras after being disabled in a storm.

Three Killed at Crossing.

Ravenna, O., Feb. 26.—Three victims of the auto-train crash, which occurred at a crossing near Wayland, were identified as Mr. and Mrs. Loren Swigart and their 3-year-old daughter, Donna, of Freedom Station. A train crashed into the auto in which they were riding, between Newton Falls and Ravenna.

Rag Mill Burns.

Middletown, O., Feb. 26.—Sreer's rag mill at Franklin, six miles north of here, burned to the ground with a loss estimated at $30,000.

15,000,000 IN USE

Motor Vehicles Outnumber Railroad Cars and Engines 6 to 1.

Washington, Feb. 26.—Government officials announced that motor vehicles in use throughout the United States outnumber steam railroad passenger and freight cars and locomotives by a ratio of 6 to 1. This estimate is based on a census of railroad stock for all steam roads in the United States at the close of 1923. The total number of motor vehicles in use in the country at the present time is approximately 15,000,000. The railroad census shows that there are 2,400,000 freight cars, 57,000 passenger coaches and 68,000 locomotives in use at the beginning of 1924, or a total of 2,525,000 units in steam transportation.

A new record was established in 1923 with the exportation from the United States and Canada of 221,816 automobiles and trucks, valued at $139,849,020, according to a report issued by the department of commerce.

To Be Continued In Office.

Washington, Feb. 26.—Walter L. Cohen, negro Republican leader of Louisiana, will be continued in office by President Coolidge as comptroller of customs at New Orleans, despite the recent senate rejection of his nomination. An agreement was reached at a conference between the president, Chairman Adams of the Republican committee, Cohen and other Republican leaders, that no other nomination for the comptroller-ship would be sent to the senate during the present session of congress.

THIRTEEN MILLIONS

Spent by Government on Federal Aid Highways In Ohio.

Washington, Feb. 26.—The United States government has spent $13,345,513.64 on federal aid highways in Ohio up to Dec. 31, 1923, according to Thomas H. MacDonald, chief of the bureau of federal roads. In all $17,344,359.31 has been apportioned from federal funds for Ohio purposes. There remains in the treasury $3,994,845.67 allotted for Ohio but unexpended, while outstanding obligations in excess of payments made total $3,146,786.13. The unobligated balance in the treasury for Ohio roads totals $48,059.54.

For new highways throughout the country the government has appropriated $452,000,000 for the fiscal years between 1917 and 1924. Of this sum $291,957,477.04 actually has been paid to states up to Jan. 31 this year. In the treasury there remains $70,636,234.55 to the credit of the various states which has not been obligated.

Wilson's Will.

Washington, Feb. 26.—Woodrow Wilson left virtually his entire estate to his wife during her lifetime, under terms of his will filed for probate here. Margaret W. Wilson, his only unmarried daughter, is to receive $2,500 annually as long as she remains unwed. Upon Mrs. Wilson's death the unexpended part of the estate shall revert to his three daughters, share and share alike.

Spirit of Chivalry to Be Reincarnated

The spirit of chivalry is being reincarnated. That spirit of self-sacrifice and benevolence which characterized the Knights Templar and Knights Hospitalers in the old days has been reborn in the Most Noble Order of Crusaders, an English organization in which many of England's highest and lowest born are enrolled.

Taking its inspiration of service from the comradeship of the army, the patron saint of the order is the Unknown Warrior on whose tomb a wreath is to be solemnly laid by the Crusaders every year. The ritual of the organization has not been divulged, all the apparatus of password, sign and token being adopted in the manner of Freemasonry.

The conclave meets in a secret place and the members are sworn not to divulge what takes place. The specific purpose of the order is to create a body of men prepared to perform public service of an undefined character and to help all those in difficulty. Its cardinal tenets are to honor God, to be true to the king, to serve the country, to exercise personal self-sacrifice and to practice as well as to profess brotherhood without distinction of rank or class. Vows of loyalty, obedience, service and self-sacrifice are taken by the 2,000 members now enrolled who, before being admitted, must serve a sort of novitiate.

The members are in three ranks, freemen, yeomen and esquires. The robes worn at their ceremonies are similar to those of the Hospitalers. The esquires wear a black gown and hood, over which is a surcoat of white linen with a red cross on the breast. The yeomen wear green, and the freemen, earth-colored attire. The head of the order the pro-grand master, wears rich crimson robes with a white cross on the arm.

One of the first meetings of the order was in Westminster abbey in London a few days ago, amid all the trappings and splendor of a medieval pageant. At this time the pro-grand master addressed his subjects:

"You have," he said, "made it your high aim to resolve to recover for this century the spirit of the age of chivalry, whose keynote was brotherhood and whose talisman was service. It is fitting, therefore, that such a mission should be sealed in this abbey church, where every stone—from the worn and time-hallowed shrine of St. Edward to the smooth slab which covers the Unknown Warrior—is in its silence an eloquent and immutable witness to the unfading chivalry of our race."

The gathering was perhaps the most unique ever assembled under the British flag. The men, democratically equalized by the strange robes, obviously belonged to all classes. Many were unmistakable workmen, and one is told that the order makes a strong appeal in the industrial districts. The procession, filing out of the church after the ceremonies, gilded to the slow and rhythmic cadences of the Gregorian chant.

Four-Footed Epicure

Here is a fox story with a moral: A certain family in Colorado, writes a contributor, caught a young fox, which they kept chained to a kennel. They fed the little fellow a great deal of bread.

Presently they began to miss their chickens. They thought first of all of the young fox, but it did not seem likely that he could kill them, chained as he was. Nevertheless, several members of the family concealed themselves and watched. They saw the fox take his bread to the end of the chain, then walk back a few steps and drop it on the ground. After that he retired to his kennel and lay down.

Soon or later the chickens saw the bread and gathered for a feast. At the right moment the fox sprang among them and had a chicken dinner.

The moral is plain: all of us like variety in our diet.—Youth's Companion.

Very Sorry

A funny case came up in the police court the other day. A Mexican with as much mescal in his system as there was gas in his flivver, wobbled into town and was pinched on the usual charges.

"I have a good mind to send you to prison for six months," snapped the judge.

"I am very sorry, senor," explained the Mexican patiently, "but already I have told you that I am returning to Tijuana tomorrow."

HOW TO CONTROL MOTHS IN HOMES

Pests Will Destroy Anything
From Clothes to Brushes.

Washington, D. C.—Complete elimination of clothes moths from the home is difficult. They breed not only in wearing apparel, but in carpets, rugs, and upholstered furniture, a single piece of which may often furnish a steady supply of moths to restock an entire house. They can be reduced, however, in any home or establishment by using the control measures prescribed by the United States Department of Agriculture.

Persons owning clothing subject to attack can afford to buy chests or cabinets that are very tight in which to store them. Trunks are usually not moth-proof. Red cedar chests when in good condition are among the tightest containers on the market. Such chests keep out the moths, and the characteristic odor of their wood kills any newly-hatched or young moth larvae that may be confined in them with the clothing. Tight chests or cabinets, the walls of which can be made to absorb as much cedar oil as is found in the wood of containers of equal size, are as valuable as cedar chests.

"Clothes moths are the prime offenders among fabric pests," says E. A. Black, entomologist, in a department bulletin.

They Prefer Darkness.

"The common clothes moths are usually seen flying in darkened corners and just beyond range of the brightest rays of the lamp. They prefer darkness.

"The moths, or millers as they are often called, have imperfectly developed mouth parts and could not feed upon fabrics if they desired. Their purpose in life is merely to lay eggs that develop into the worms or larvae, which alone can cause destruction. Nevertheless, every moth killed helps to reduce infestations by preventing more eggs being laid. The moths lay their eggs in and about clothing and other objects subject to attack. From the eggs are hatched the larvae, or worms. Only the worm or larvae of the clothes moth is capable of destroying fabrics.

"There are two very common species of clothes moth. They are the case-making clothes moth and the webbing clothes moth. The tapestry moth is less often found, though it may become destructive.

"The adult of the case-making clothes moth has a wing expanse of about half an inch. Its head and forewings are grayish yellow or buff, with indistinct dark spots on the middle of the outer portions. The hind wings are white or grayish and silky.

"The case-making clothes moth is so named because the larva, for its protection, makes a portable case out of spun silk and fragments of the fabric upon which it feeds. These cases attain a length of from four-sixteenths to six-sixteenths of an inch. The larva almost never leaves its case. The webbing clothes moth is the most abundant and injurious clothes moth.

Bothered by One Type.

During the last few years, practically all instances of severe clothes-moth damage reported by manufacturing plants throughout the North, including Chicago, Boston and New York, have been associated with this species. For years it has been the prevailing species in certain houses in western Massachusetts and southeastern Connecticut, hence it cannot be said that this webbing clothes moth is typically Southern in distribution, although it is often called the 'Southern' clothes moth.

"Clothes moths feed upon wool, fur, hair, feathers, and all fabrics manufactured from them. They also relish dried animal matter such as dead insects, including the dead of their own species, and untreated skins, beef meal, casein, etc. In experimental work clothes moths have thrived best upon a diet of bristles, hair, feathers, fur, or raw wool, and not so well upon ordinary woolen cloth used in the making of wearing apparel. Notwithstanding this, the damage they cause to wearing apparel has given them a well-deserved reputation as pests.

"There may be some satisfaction, however, in knowing that if the death rate among clothes moths feeding upon dyed woolen fabrics was as low as among those feeding upon raw wool, and their growth as rapid as when they feed upon bristles, furs and hair, their capacity for destruction would be increased enormously.

"A single piece of hair-stuffed or feather-stuffed furniture may keep a house well stocked with clothes moths for years."

U. S. Mine Death Rate Triple That of Britain

Washington.—Coal miners are being killed three times as fast in the United States as in Great Britain, Royal S. Meeker, secretary of the Pennsylvania Department of Labor and Industry, told the annual session of the American Association for Labor Legislation recently. Both the fatality and the general accident rate among Pennsylvania miners have increased in spite of safety measures, he said.

Van A. Bittner of the United Mine Workers of America suggested that conservation of the coal supply and of human life could be directed only through a federal Department of Mines. He also advocated a federal safety council, composed of miners, coal operators and government representatives, to compel the installation of safety devices in mines.

Content With Little.
"It seems to me," said Marthe, with the wisdom that the simple in heart acquire with pain and travail, "that in this world a woman's only chance of happiness is if she loves. Being loved doesn't make her so. . . . Love's a fire, so it must have fuel to keep it alight, but a woman's fire needs very little, and that is rather a good thing perhaps, for she seldom gets much."—"The Journey Home," by Sybil Lethbridge.

Where Buzzards Foregather.
Buzzards nest in trees in swampy places, if possible; if they can find an island difficult of access to man they speedily pre-empt the place, invite all the members of their kind within a radius of many miles, and make the island their breeding ground, where thousands of them gather. At the breeding ground and at the roosting places the ground always is covered with filth, bones, feathers and carrion of all kinds.

Ribbons and Lace Are Used for This Frock

A youthful dance frock is here shown, made up completely of ribbons and lace inserts—shell-pink silk and white lace.

Easy to Keep Lingerie Fresh and Delightful

Daintiness is important in most branches of dress, but absolutely essential in lingerie, says the Lady's Companion. Modern taste has discarded masses of ribbon, lace, brilliant colors and eccentricity of any kind in underwear, so it is really an easy matter to keep it fresh and delightful to look upon. White Jap silk or delicate white washing crepes and nainsooks are the favored materials, well cut and perfectly finished off with a little handwork. Favorite forms of decoration are deep hems of net, scallops fagotting, slotting and inset motifs.

Beading is used to replace seams and hems whenever possible, and even shoulder straps are of self material, with a touch of veining or what-not—a far more practical notion for washing garments than expensive ribbons. A few delicate colors, such as primrose, cyclamen, wistaria, shell, peach and apricot are not frowned upon for underwear—especially trousseau underwear—but the girl who is rather hard up will find white the best choice, six times out of seven.

A charming notion for keeping lingerie beautiful "in repose," as well as in use, adorned a recent trousseau and might be adopted by every girl who loves "pretties," as it costs practically nothing. The notion consisted in keeping each separate "set" together with a broad band of frilled ribbon garter elastic, fastened with a press stud, the joint being hidden by a satin sachet in the shape of a rose.

The color of the bands was lilac (the bride's favorite), but it might be varied for different sets, especially if some were tinted and others white. The bands keep the sets compact and show the wearer at a glance which she wants. Such delicious bundles should, of course, be kept in a drawer lined with soft tissue or a piece of flowered voile, wide enough to fold over the garments and hold in the fragrance of the sachets.

Colored Ribbon Used for Curtain Tie-Backs

Plain white curtains may be made infinitely more attractive by the use of colored ribbon tie-backs instead of the usual conventional white. To make them, use three-quarters of a yard of heavy satin ribbon, one and three-quarters of an inch wide for the band to go around the curtain. Trim both edges of this with contrasting colored ribbon one-quarter of an inch wide shirred on in a zig-zag manner. Where the band is sewed together place a ribbon wheel made in the following way: Cover a piece of buckram cut in a circle three inches in diameter with tiny rosettes made of the same ribbon which edges the band. Around the circumference sew a plaited frill of the same ribbon used in making the band. You will need two yards for this frill and five yards of the narrow ribbon will be necessary for trimming both band and wheel.

It is possible to achieve many lovely color harmonies by the use of these ribbon tie-backs, and leading interior decorators are using them extensively in their new designs. Recently a well-known New York decorator placed yellow and jade tie-backs made in the above manner on curtains of violet taffeta. These beautiful curtains were hung in a dining room the walls of which were paneled in gray-green.

Smart Walking Sticks.
Walking sticks have assumed quite a place in the wardrobe of the well-dressed woman, and there can be no doubt that they add a most delightful touch to the walking costume. Much ingenuity has been expended upon the handles, which quite often conceal powder, puff and mirror.

Content With Little.
"It seems to me," said Marthe, with the wisdom that the simple in heart acquire with pain and travail, "that in this world a woman's only chance of happiness is if she loves. Being loved doesn't make her so. . . . Love's a fire, so it must have fuel to keep it alight, but a woman's fire needs very little, and that is rather a good thing perhaps, for she seldom gets much."—"The Journey Home," by Sybil Lethbridge.

Where Buzzards Foregather.
Buzzards nest in trees in swampy places, if possible; if they can find an island difficult of access to man they speedily pre-empt the place. Invite all the members of their kind within a radius of many miles, and make the island their breeding ground, where thousands of them gather. At the breeding ground and at the roosting places the ground always is covered with filth, bones, feathers and carrion of all kinds.

Ribbons and Lace Are Used for This Frock

A youthful dance frock is here shown, made up completely of ribbons and lace inserts—shell-pink silk and white lace.

Easy to Keep Lingerie Fresh and Delightful

Daintiness is important in most branches of dress, but absolutely essential in lingerie, says the Lady's Companion. Modern taste has discarded masses of ribbon, lace, brilliant colors and eccentricity of any kind in underwear, so it is really an easy matter to keep it fresh and delightful to look upon. White Jap silk or delicate white washing crepes and nainsooks are the favored materials, well cut and perfectly finished off with a little hand-work. Favorite forms of decoration are deep hems of net, scallops fagotting, slotting and inset motifs.

McCRAE SURRENDERS
Indiana Governor Charged With Using Mails to Defraud.
Indianapolis, Feb. 26.—Warren T. McCrae, governor of Indiana, surrendered to two indictments returned by the federal grand jury. The indictments charge the governor with using the mails to defraud and conspiracy to violate the national banking laws. Alleged representations as to his financial condition and as to the validity and character of "cattle paper," on which the governor obtained loans from banks throughout the middle west, are made the basis for the indictments. McCrae is charged with misapplication of the funds of the Discount and Deposit bank at Kentland, Ind., while he was its president, falsifying records and reports to the federal reserve bank in Chicago and abstraction of notes held by the bank.

Students Threaten to Strike.
Kansas City, Kan., Feb. 26.—Students of a local high school threatened to strike unless E. E. Damien, instructor in printing, who resigned after being charged with kissing Margaret Pratt, 18-year-old senior, is reinstated. Petitions calling for the rehiring of Damien were circulated. Damien said the kiss was the result of a dare.

"JOLLY JESTER"
Ventriloquist Will Furnish Entertainment
Tonight at 7:30
Boys and Girls of Circleville:—
Do you want to see a real honest-to-goodness clown and talk with him? The "Jolly Jester" magic health clown and ventriloquist is coming to Circleville tonight.
The Circleville Benevolent association has arranged with the Ohio Public Health association for his appearance here tonight, February 26, for a performance at the high school auditorium.

The "Jolly Jester" has appeared before audiences of school children all over the country and wherever he has appeared the children still have pleasant memories of him and the things he told them.
The Ohio Public Health association has secured the services of the "Jolly Jester" in Ohio in order to teach children the value of eating the right kinds of foods and practicing health habits that will make them strong and healthy. He will give performances in a score or more cities and towns during February and March.
No charge is to be made to children for his performance, expenses being met by the state and local organizations under whose auspices he appears.

MINISTERED TO MILLIONS
Frances E. Willard Was the Foremost Woman of Her Generation.

Ashville Union Had Interesting Program
Commemorative of the Great Reformer and Educator—Worldwide Effort to Save Childhood.

The monthly meeting of the Ashville Woman's Christian Temperance Union was held at the home of Mrs. Jacob Young, Thursday afternoon, February 21. There was a large attendance and much interest prevailed. The president, Mrs. Ada E. Van Vickle, presided. Mrs. Luella Duvall had charge of the program which was commemorative of Frances E. Willard, the great reformer and educator. Mrs. Shook had charge of the devotions.

The program opened by singing "America." Mrs. Cloud, the secretary read the minutes of the previous meeting. A paper was read by Mrs. George Hott entitled "Frances E. Willard," which told how her early life was spent in the rugged pioneer wilds of Wisconsin. There this great soul springing from the noble stock of New England Puritan ancestry, and reared amid the privations of pioneer life of our western states, laid the foundation for her iron will, her unyielding courage and her matchless achievements and made it possible for her name to be written among earth's immortals as the foremost women of her generation. Frances E. Willard's range of activities touched every sphere of human uplift. She was brilliant as a teacher, preacher, author, orator, editor, lecturer and organizer. But her greatest achievement was, no doubt her wonderful leadership of women thruout the world in the capacity of president of the national world's Women's Christian Temperance unions. "The great thought of her great heart was to gather the women of the world" for a world wide effort to save childhood, and rescue manhood from sin, misery and shame and to make the world a cleaner and safer place in which to live and labor for "God, home and native land."

Mrs. Annie Cordray read a very interesting paper entitled "Our Civilization is Greater Because of Frances E. Willard." The spirit of Frances E. Willard today inspires not only woman-kind but all mankind to loftier ideals and greater achievements, she helped to give to the world a better discipline a richer scholarship, a finer culture, a deeper patriotism and a more consecrated character with her high moral nature she infused into her activities a moral and spiritual atmosphere that caused the seeds of noble character to blossom into the flowers of brave and illustrious deeds. She led in the great task of making the principles of the meek and lowly Nazarene, a breathing and pulsating power in our civic, state and national life. Mrs. Nettie Brintlinger read a very excellent article entitled "She Ministered to Millions" which showed that in her ministrations she touched millions of lives and did more to elevate, sweeten and change the moral purposes of mankind than any other woman of her generation. Many of the great reforms for which she plead and fought so heroically have been written into our constitution and national statutes. Mrs. Lena Reid read a forcible paper entitled "Frances Willard will Ever Inspire Mankind," which proved that her life is an inspiration, her achievements a benediction and that her name will forever shine as one of the greatest stars in the galaxy of the world's foremost leaders in the uplift of humankind. Mrs. J. M. Chandler read a highly interesting paper entitled "A Stronger National Sentiment Needed." Miss Ethel Dunlap read an inspiring paper entitled "Crusading at the Primaries." Mrs. Elizabeth Wright read "Why a Frances Willard Memorial Fund?" This fund is for the perpetuation of the principles and work of the W. C. T. U. and was established at the national convention in 1898. Down the long trail of a quarter of a century, thank offerings from local unions have made possible the missionary work of the W. C. T. U. Isolated and needy places have been reached, new unions organized and weak unions strengthened. Thank offerings helped to win prohibition and ratification campaigns, each and every union in the United States is privileged each year preferably in February to make a thank offering to the Frances Willard Memorial organizing fund.

A report of W. C. T. U. work from four states were given by the following: California, Mrs. Jennie Steward; New York Mrs. Tina Schlegel; Pennsylvania, Mrs. Alma Boor; Connecticut, Mrs. Bertha Fortner. Mrs. Lucy Cline gave a very interesting talk. Mrs. Lucy B. Price the county president gave an interesting and instructive gave an interesting and instructive with a number of good musical numbers including a very pretty vocal solo by Elizabeth Pontius. There was a delightful social period during which the hostess and her assistants served bountiful and delicious refreshments. Among the visitors were Mrs. E. L. Price, Miss Lida Leist, Mrs. John S. Neff and Mrs. S. W. Dunlap, of Circleville.

REAL ESTATE DEALS.

The Circle Realty company closed the following sales:

SUDDEN DEATH

Body of David Huffer Found in Mithoff Woods Near Lancaster.

David Huffer, who formerly lived a mile and half northeast of the infirmary in Washington township, was found dead Saturday evening in the Mithoff woods in the Reese Baby farm addition, southwest of Lancaster. The body was found by J. C. Chilcote.

The dead man had been cutting wood and Mr. Chilcote, who had been working a short distance away not hearing the sound of the ax and thinking something might be wrong walked over that way and found Mr. Huffer lying dead on the ground.

The deceased was 75 years of age. His wife, who was Miss Stebleton of Stoutsville, died some years ago. Two sons and five daughters are living. They are Frank and William Huffer, Mrs. Blanche Wolf, Mrs. Lydia Brown of this city; Jennie, wife of Harry Pierce of Lancaster, where he had made his home and Mrs. Emma Pierce and Mrs. Mary Thomas, of Lancaster. The deceased was a son of the late Rezin Huffer.

The funeral services were held Tuesday afternoon at the Lutheran church Stoutsville at 2 o'clock. Interment in the Stoutsville cemetery.

McCRAY SURRENDERS

Indiana Governor Charged With Using Mails to Defraud.

Indianapolis, Feb. 26.—Warren T. McCray, governor of Indiana, surrendered to two indictments returned by the federal grand jury. The indictments charge the governor with using the mails to defraud and conspiring to violate the national banking laws. Alleged representations as to his financial condition and as to the validity and character of "cattle paper," on which the governor obtained loans from banks throughout the middle west, are made the basis for the indictments. McCray is charged with misapplication of the funds of the Discount and Deposit bank at Kentland, Ind., while he was its president, falsifying records and reports to the federal reserve bank in Chicago and abstraction of notes held by the bank.

Students Threaten to Strike.

Kansas City, Kan., Feb. 26.—Students of a local high school threatened to strike unless E. E. Damien, instructor in printing, who resigned after being charged with kissing Margaret Pratt, 18-year-old senior, is reinstated. Petitions calling for the rehiring of Damien were circulated. Damien said the kiss was the result of a dare.

"JOLLY JESTER"

Ventriloquist Will Furnish Entertainment

Tonight at 7:30

Boys and Girls of Circleville:—

Do you want to see a real honest-to-goodness clown and talk with him? The "Jolly Jester" magic health clown and ventriloquist is coming to Circleville tonight.

The Circleville Benevolent association has arranged with the Ohio Public Health association for his appearance here tonight, February 26, for a performance at the high school auditorium.

The "Jolly Jester" has appeared before audiences of school children all over the country and wherever he has appeared the children still have pleasant memories of him and the things he told them.

The Ohio Public Health association has secured the services of the "Jolly Jester" in Ohio in order to teach children the value of eating the right kinds of foods and practicing health habits that will make them strong and healthy. He will give performances in a score or more cities and towns during February and March.

No charge is to be made to children for his performance, expenses being met by the state and local organizations under whose auspices he appears.

MINISTERED

Frances E. Willard Was the Foremost Woman of Her Generation.

Ashtville Union Had Interesting Program Commemorative of the Great Reformer and Educator—Worldwide Effort to Save Childhood.

The monthly meeting of the Ashtville Woman's Christian Temperance Union was held at the home of Mrs. Jacob Young, Thursday afternoon, February 21. There was a large attendance and much interest prevailed. The president, Mrs. Ada E. VanVickle, presided. Mrs. Luella Duvall had charge of the program which was commemorative of Frances E. Willard, the great reformer and educator. Mrs. Shook had charge of the devotions.

The program opened by singing "America." Mrs. Cloud, the secretary read the minutes of the previous meeting. A paper was read by Mrs. George Hott entitled "Frances E. Willard," which told how her early life was spent in the rugged pioneer wilds of Wisconsin. There this great soul springing from the noble stock of New England Puritan ancestry, and reared amid the privations of pioneer life of our western states, laid the foundation for her iron will, her unyielding courage and her matchless achievements and made it possible for her name to be written among earth's immortals as the foremost women of her generation. Frances E. Willard's range of activities touched every sphere of human uplift. She was brilliant as a teacher, preacher, author, orator, editor, lecturer and organizer. But her greatest achievement was, no doubt her wonderful leadership of women thruout the world in the capacity of president of the national world's Women's Christian Temperance unions. "The great thought of her great heart was to gather the women of the world" for a world wide effort to save childhood, and rescue manhood from sin, misery and shame and to make the world a cleaner and safer place in which to live and labor for "God, home and native land." Mrs. Annie Cordray read a very interesting paper entitled "Our Civilization is Greater Because of Frances E. Willard." The spirit of Frances E. Willard today inspires not only woman-kind but all mankind to loftier ideals and greater achievements, she helped to give to the world a better discipline a richer scholarship, a finer culture, a deeper patriotism and a more consecrated character with her high moral nature she infused into her activities a moral and spiritual atmosphere that caused the seeds of noble character to blossom into the flowers of brave and illustrious deeds. She led in the great task of making the principles of the meek and lowly Nazarene, a breathing and pulsating power in our civic, state and national life. Mrs. Nettie Brintlinger read a very excellent article entitled "She Ministered to Millions" which showed that in her ministrations she touched millions of lives and did more to elevate, sweeten and change the moral purposes of mankind than any other woman of her generation. Many of the great reforms for which she plead and fought so heroically have been written into our constitution and national statutes.

Mrs. Lena Reid read a forcible paper entitled "Frances Willard will Ever Inspire Mankind," which proved that her life is an inspiration, her achievements a benediction and that her name will forever shine as one of the greatest stars in the galaxy of the world's foremost leaders in the uplift of humankind. Mrs. J. M. Chandler read a highly interesting paper entitled "A Stronger National Sentiment Needed." Miss Ethel Dunlap read an inspiring paper entitled "Crusading at the Primaries." Mrs. Elizabeth Wright read "Why a Frances Willard Memorial Fund?" This fund is for the perpetuation of the principles and work of the W. C. T. U. and was established at the national convention in 1898. Down the long trail of a quarter of a century, thank offerings from local unions have made possible the missionary work of the W. C. T. U. Isolated and needy places have been reached, new unions organized and weak unions strengthened. Thank offerings helped to win prohibition and ratification campaigns, each and every union in the United States is privileged each year preferably in February to make a thank offering to the Frances Willard Memorial organizing fund.

A report of W. C. T. U. work from four states were given by the following: California, Mrs. Jennie Steward; New York Mrs. Tina Schlegel; Pennsylvania, Mrs. Alma Boor; Connecticut, Mrs. Bertha Fortner. Mrs. Lucy Cline gave a very interesting talk. Mrs. Lucy B. Price the county president gave an interesting and instructive gave an interesting and instructive with a number of good musical numbers including a very pretty vocal solo by Elizabeth Pontius. There was a delightful social period during which the hostess and her assistants served bountiful and delicious refreshments. Among the visitors were Mrs. E. L. Price, Miss Lida Leist, Mrs. John S. Neff and Mrs. S. W. Dunlap, of Circleville.

SUDDEN DEATH

Body of David Huffer Found in Mithoff Woods Near Lancaster.

David Huffer, who formerly lived a mile and half northeast of the infirmary in Washington township, was found dead Saturday evening in the Mithoff woods in the Reese Baby farm addition, southwest of Lancaster. The body was found by J. C. Chilcote.

The dead man had been cutting wood and Mr. Chilcote, who had been working a short distance away not hearing the sound of the ax and thinking something might be wrong walked over that way and found Mr. Huffer lying dead on the ground.

The deceased was 75 years of age. His wife, who was Miss Stebleton of Stoutsville, died some years ago. Two sons and five daughters are living. They are Frank and William Huffer, Mrs. Blanche Wolf, Mrs. Lydia Brown of this city; Jennie, wife of Harry Pierce of Lancaster, where he had made his home and Mrs. Emma Pierce and Mrs. Mary Thomas, of Lancaster. The deceased was a son of the late Rezin Huffer.

The funeral services were held Tuesday afternoon at the Lutheran church Stoutsville at 2 o'clock. Interment in the Stoutsville cemetery.

LOYALTY IS MOST IMPORTANT WORD
Wins First Place in Lists of Six Supplied by Savants.

Princeton.—That "loyalty" is the most important word in the English language today is the consensus of a representative group of Princeton professors, a noted Egyptologist and the university proctor here. The question was raised in a discussion in a preceptorial meeting, and to settle the discussion Prof. Christian Gauss, director of public relations, recently made inquiry among eight professors, Proctor Bovie and Dr. David Paton, the Egyptologist.

President Hibben when asked for a list of six most important words in the language placed "loyalty" second only to "duty." Dean West of the Graduate college, foremost American educator, and Dr. Joseph E. Raycroft, director of the department of physical education, both ranked "loyalty" first, an intellectual and a physical authority thus being at one in this choice. Three other men placed "loyalty" either first or second in their six word lists—Dr. J. Duncan Spaeth, professor of English literature and rowing coach; David Paton, Egyptologist, and Proctor Henry Bovie.

Courage Next to Loyalty.
"Courage" followed "loyalty" with four selections. Here again Dean West and Doctor Raycroft were at one in their choice. Prof. Duane Reed Stuart of the classics department also chose this word as did Dr. Stewart Paton, brother of the Egyptologist and noted neurobiologist. Doctor Paton created quite a stir recently when he predicted that intercollegiate football must some day be abolished because of its commercialism, but he attributed great virtue to the game as a means of attaining sportsmanship and courage.

Although his chief interest is in education, Dean West placed "knowledge" after "loyalty" and "magnanimity." Dr. Henry van Dyke, formerly professor of English literature at Princeton, chose common every day words such as "yes" and "no," "the" and "a." David Paton concluded his list with "a catholic sense of humor" without which he said any man is certain to make himself too seriously. The complete word lists chosen follow:

Complete Lists of Words.
President Hibben, duty loyalty, honor, self-control, service, sacrifice.
Dean West, loyalty, magnanimity, knowledge, energy, courage, humor.
Dr. van Dyke, a, the, is, no, yes, do.
Prof. Edwin G. Conklin, head of the department of biology, sincerity, sanity, humanity, love, truth, beauty.
Doctor Raycroft, loyalty, courage, persistence, self-respect, sportsman-ship, tolerance.
Professor Stuart, sensitiveness, re-straint, sportsmanship, courage, self-knowledge, altruism.
Doctor Spaeth, liberty, loyalty, sympathy, justice, intelligence, character.
Dr. David Paton, loyalty (for friend-ship's sake), charity (for charity's sake), work (for work's sake), sport (for sport's sake), a catholic sense of humor.
Dr. Stewart Paton, truth, courage, perseverance, health, family, friends.
Proctor Bovie, religion, loyalty, hon-esty, fairness, work, recreation.

Many Kinds of Animals Swept Up From Streets
New York.—If all the things the sanitary bureau of the department of health gathered from the streets of New York city in 1922, according to belated reports for that year, were in good working order and assembled in one place there would be the nucleus for a good menagerie. The report shows that the bureau dragged up the bodies of one lion, one bear, one alligator, two camels, three elephants, one deer, 5,697 horses, 308 cattle, 16 ponies, 11 colts, 8 mules, 4 donkeys, 254,803 cats, 4,538 dogs, 741 calves, 375 sheep, 345 goats, 45 hogs and 3 seals.
The report does not say where the seals, the alligator, the camels, the elephants, the lion and the bear came from. In fact the report has it that the bureau is as surprised as anybody.

Girl Dresses Doll in Lost Bonds Worth $40,000
Chicago.—Eileen Berry, eight years old, playing along the street near her home, discovered in the snow an envelope containing several papers with gold edges.
"What have you there, Eileen?" asked her father, the next evening, as he noticed her marking out plans on the papers.
"Just some pretty paper to make dresses for my dollies," she said as she held up one of the papers.
Mr. Berry investigated and was struck speechless. The "pretty papers" were gold bonds, worth $40,000, all negotiable, with $900 interest coupons attached. Inquiry at the bank disclosed they had been lost by A. G. Becker, head of an investment company bearing his name, and he gave Eileen $100 wherewith to buy less expensive material for her doll dresses.

Dog Bites Cost $70,000
Jersey City, N. J.—It cost Hudson county $70,000 to treat 900 persons who were bitten by dogs there last year, according to statements by Dr. John Von Der Leith, a veterinary surgeon, before the annual convention of the Veterinary Medical Association of New Jersey in Jersey City recently. Each person bitten had to undergo the Pasteur treatment, which costs the county $75.

CANDIDATE FOR GOVERNOR
James A. White is First Republican to File Nomination Papers.

Office Affords Opportunity to Render Service to People of the State—Was Formerly Superintendent of Ohio Anti-Saloon League.
James A. White became the first recognized candidate for the Republican nomination for governor when he filed formal papers with the secretary of state a few minutes before closing hours on Saturday. His petition was signed by Christena White, his mother, now in her 91st year. Myrtle G. White, his wife, Edna M. White, his sister-in-law, and Cecil A. White and L. W. White, nephews.
In filing his papers Mr. White gave out this statement:
I am a candidate for the Republican nomination for governor of Ohio, because of the opportunity it affords, if elected, to render services to the people of the state.
I shall discuss fully and fearlessly all political issues during the campaign.
The taxation question is too big for one brain to solve but no more tax burden should be placed on the home. Present burdens should be reduced wherever possible. A debt limitation is as necessary as a tax limitation. Taxation is not a partisan issue. Conferences should be called and a committee for fact finding should be appointed to present all the facts to the legislature in order that all may honestly and equitably bear their share of the expense of government. A patriotic campaign should be conducted to this end. Let us find the right thing to do; then do it. The strictest economy in expenditures should be practiced by all the units of government. Less tax gathering and wiser expenditures.
Ohio needs less legislation and better administration.
The wards of the state should have the best care and attention possible leading to reclaiming them for good citizenship. This is especially true of the boys school at Lancaster and the Girls' school at Delaware. They are mostly young and first offenders, therefore a better opportunity to help them should be afforded. They should have the best trained service to be had regardless of party politics.
Many of our citizens have lost their savings thru the sale of worthless stock. The Blue Sky department should be honestly administered or abolished; otherwise, a certificate from this department gives a false security to the people who purchase it.
If the liberties of the people are to be made secure all the laws of the state must be effectively enforced. I favor a program of coordinating all the agencies of government to the end that the laws may be effectively enforced. Obedience to law should be taught in the home, school, church and in all religious and civic organizations.
Good roads, good homes and good schools go hand in hand with good government. A comprehensive system of road building which will not be burdensome should be, carried on covering a period of years, but money should first be spent in fully keeping in repair and maintaining roads already built.
Every boy and girl should have as liberal an education as it is possible to furnish. The child labor law should be enforced and boys and girls kept in school.
Every useless commission or bureau will be abolished.
If nominated and elected governor of Ohio, I will go into office without any strings upon me and will be unbossed, unbought and unafraid.

COMPANIONS KILLED
Girls Pinned in Ditch by Bodies and Wrecked Automobile.
Louisville, Ky., Feb. 26.—Miss Esiee Thomas, and Miss Irene Chilton, both 16, were imprisoned for six hours with the dead bodies of two companions, Charles W. Heben, 23, and Guy Burnett, 21, when an automobile in which they were riding skidded off the road near here and overturned.
A ditch in which the automobile landed was partly filled with water. The girls were soaked and suffered from exposure to the cold in addition to nervous shock and bruises. The accident ended an automobile ride following a dance, according to Miss Chilton. She said the two men died soon after the accident, both being crushed to death. It was impossible for them to get out of the wreckage, she said, being pinned by both the automobile and the bodies of the men.
Pavement of Human Skulls.
There is said to exist a pavement at Gdawa, Africa, in the making of which thousands of human skulls are alleged to have been employed.

GOLDEN STATE
Lemuel J. Hurst Says Enterprise of People is Enormous.

Lemuel J. Hurst has returned home to Williamsport from his trip to the Pacific coast where he spent the major portion of four months. Most of the time was spent on the coast in southern California. He visited the capital of the Mormons, Salt Lake City, and admired the beauty of Utah, but his memory and associations cling with fondness to the Golden State, California.
The enterprise of the citizens of this far western state is enormous. Everything is done on a colossal scale and their very nerve carries you along with them and if you don't drop your money and invest, it's not their fault. The city of Los Angeles has now over a million people, additions have been laid out for a distance of thirty-five miles from the center of the city. After they are thru selling you town lots the realtors take you out in the country and sell you land to raise garden truck or fruit. They don't let you get away, if they know you have a copper in your jeans.

AMUSEMENTS

Returning to the screen after an absence of more than two years Madge Kennedy, noted screen star, was seen at the Met theater yesterday in the Paramount Kenma picture production "The Purple Highway." The picture as well as Miss Kennedy, was heartly received.
Miss Kennedy has the role of April Blair, a slavey in a Home for Artistic Failures. Here she meets Edgar Craig, in reality Edgar Prentice, son of the founder of the institution and a failure at playwrighting. Then, too, there is Joe Renard, an accomplished violinist. It is thru April that they leave the home and again tackle the world in search of their long delayed success.
Edgar writes an acceptable play for which Joe writes the musical score, April becoming a great star by her singing therein. She accepts the attentions of Dudley Quail, a wealthy waster. April seems to forget that she owes everything to Edgar and Joe. How Prentice contrives to make all of her youthful dreams realities furnishes "The Purple Highway" with a climax that is most unique.
Monte Blue is excellent as Edgar Prentice, while Pedro de Cordoba portrays Joe Renard with quiet artistry. Others who render efficient support include Dore Davidson, Vincent Coleman, Emily Fitzroy, William H. Tooker, Winifred Harris, John W. Jenkins and Charles Kent.
THE SICK.
Mrs. Lucy Alsbaugh of Ashville, is critically ill.
Mrs. Maggie Immel is seriously ill at the home of her nephew, Robert Immel, near Yellowbud.
Baptism in Cyprus.
A baptism in Cyprus is a curious ceremony. The infant is rubbed with oil by his godfather, blown upon in the face by the priest and waved in the air, then dipped several times in the font, and again anointed with oil on various parts of the body.

BUYS BAZORE FARM.
One of the finest tracts of land in Deercreek township, the W. A. Bazore farm, consisting of 124 acres, has been purchased by Lemuel J. Hurst. It adjoins his farm and has one of the finest, modern built homes in the township. If the buildings on the farm had to be built with the present price of building materials, it would cost as much to put them up as the price paid for the farm. Mr. Hurst has received a number of fine offers for his purchase, but has not yet decided to sell.
OPERETTA POSTPONED.
The Wishing Well operetta which was to be given at Monroe township school February 27, has been post-

LOYALTY IS MOST IMPORTANT WORD

Wins First Place in Lists of Six Supplied by Savants.

Princeton.—That "loyalty" is the most important word in the English language today is the consensus of a representative group of Princeton professors, a noted Egyptologist and the university proctor here. The question was raised in a discussion in a preceptorial meeting, and to settle the discussion Prof. Christian Gauss, director of public relations, recently made inquiry among eight professors, Proctor Bovie and Dr. David Paton, the Egyptologist.

President Hibben when asked for a list of six most important words in the language placed "loyalty" second only to "duty." Dean West of the Graduate college, foremost American educator, and Dr. Joseph E. Raycroft, director of the department of physical education, both ranked "loyalty" first, an intellectual and a physical authority thus being at one in this choice. Three other men placed "loyalty" either first or second in their six word lists—Dr. J. Duncan Spaeth, professor of English literature and rowing coach; David Paton, Egyptologist, and Proctor Henry Bovie.

Courage Next to Loyalty.
"Courage" followed "loyalty" with four selections. Here again Dean West and Doctor Raycroft were at one in their choice. Prof. Duane Reed Stuart of the classics department also chose this word as did Dr. Stewart Paton, brother of the Egyptologist and noted neurobiologist. Doctor Paton created quite a stir recently when he predicted that intercollegiate football must some day be abolished because of its commercialism, but he attributed great virtue to the game as a means of attaining sportsmanship and courage.

Although his chief interest is in education, Dean West placed "knowledge" after "loyalty" and "magnanimity." Dr. Henry van Dyke, formerly professor of English literature at Princeton, chose common every day words such as "yes" and "no," "the" and "a." David Paton concluded his list with "a catholic sense of humor" without which he said any man is certain to take himself too seriously. The complete word lists chosen follow:

Complete Lists of Words.
President Hibben, duty, loyalty, honor, self-control, service, sacrifice.
Dean West, loyalty, magnanimity, knowledge, energy, courage, humor.
Dr. van Dyke, a, the, is, no, yes, do.
Prof. Edwin G. Conklin, head of the department of biology, sincerity, sanity, humanity, love, truth, beauty.
Doctor Raycroft, loyalty, courage, persistence, self-respect, sportsman-ship, tolerance.
Professor Stuart, sensitiveness, re-straint, sportsmanship, courage, self-knowledge, altruism.
Doctor Spaeth, liberty, loyalty, sym-athy, justice, intelligence, character.
Dr. David Paton, loyalty (for friend-ship's sake), charity (for charity's sake), work (for work's sake), sport (for sport's sake), a catholic sense of humor.
Dr. Stewart Paton, truth, courage, perseverance, health, family, friends.
Proctor Bovie, religion, loyalty, hon-esty, fairness, work, recreation.

Many Kinds of Animals Swept Up From Streets
New York.—If all the things the san-itary bureau of the department of health gathered from the streets of New York city in 1922, according to belated reports for that year, were in good working order and assembled in one place there would be the nucleus for a good menagerie. The report shows that the bureau dragged up the bodies of one lion, one bear, one all-igator, two camels, three elephants, one deer, 5,697 horses, 308 cattle, 16 ponies, 11 colts, 8 mules, 4 donkeys, 254,803 cats, 4,538 dogs, 741 calves, 375 sheep, 345 goats, 45 hogs and 3 seals.
The report does not say where the seals, the alligator, the camels, the elephants, the lion and the bear came from. In fact the report has it that the bureau is as surprised as anybody.

Girl Dresses Doll in Lost Bonds Worth $40,000
Chicago.—Eileen Berry, eight years old, playing along the street, near her home, discovered in the snow an en-velope containing several papers with gold edges.
"What have you there, Eileen?" asked her father, the next evening, as he noticed her marking out plans on the papers.
"Just some pretty paper to make dresses for my dollies," she said as she held up one of the papers.
Mr. Berry investigated and was struck speechless. The "pretty papers" were gold bonds, worth $40,000, all ne-gotiable, with $900 interest coupons at-tached. Inquiry at the bank disclosed they had been lost by A. G. Becker, head of an investment company bear-ing his name, and he gave Eileen $100 wherewith to buy less expensive ma-terial for her doll dresses.

Dog Bites Cost $70,000
Jersey City, N. J.—It cost Hudson county $70,000 to treat 900 persons who were bitten by dogs there last year, according to statements by Dr. John Von Der Leith, a veterinary sur-geon, before the annual convention of the Veterinary Medical Association of New Jersey in Jersey City recently. Each person bitten had to undergo the Pasteur treatment, which costs the county $75.

CANDIDATE FOR GOVERNOR

James A. White is First Republican to File Nomination Papers.

Office Affords Opportunity to Render Service to People of the State—Was Formerly Superintendent of Ohio
Anti-Saloon League.

James A. White became the first recognized candidate for the Republi-can nomination for governor when he filed formal papers with the secretary of state a few minutes before closing hours on Saturday. His petition was signed by Christena White, his moth-er, now in her 91st year. Myrtle G. White, his wife, Edna M. White, his sister-in-law, and Cecil A. White and L. W. White, nephews.
In filing his papers Mr. White gave out this statement:
I am a candidate for the Republican nomination for governor of Ohio, be-cause of the opportunity it affords, if elected, to render services to the peo-ple of the state.
I shall discuss fully and fearlessly all political issues during the cam-paign.

The taxation question is too big for one brain to solve but no more tax burden should be placed on the home. Present burdens should be re-duced wherever possible. A debt limitation is as necessary as a tax limitation. Taxation is not a partisan issue. Conferences should be called and a committee for fact finding should be appointed to present all the facts to the legislature in order that all may honestly and equitably bear their share of the expense of govern-ment. A patriotic campaign should be conducted to this end. Let us find the right thing to do; then do it. The strictest economy in expendi-tures should be practiced by all the units of government. Less tax gather-ing and wiser expenditures.

Good Way to Clear Land.
In the novel method of clearing land adopted by a Minnesota farmer, the underground roots are burned away, freeing the stump above ground for use as firewood. At one side of each stump an excavation is made in the ground, and from this a hole is bored through the roots to a stovepipe set upright in the ground on the other side. When a fire is kindled in the excavation, the draft set up through the roots and the pipe causes the roots to be slowly consumed, until the stump may be toppled over quite unharmed.

Problem to Check Deterioration of Various Crops Before Marketing Them.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)
One of the great general problems faced by the United States Department of Agriculture and by state experiment stations is the curtailing of losses of crops through deterioration before they can be marketed or consumed. The prevention of such wastes, brought about by the agency of micro-organisms, insects, fire, water, and other destructive agencies, is to a large extent a problem for the agricultural chemist. "This problem," says Dr. C. A. Browne, chief of the bureau of chemistry, "is equal in importance to that of the utilization of waste."

Loss to Sugar Industry.
Nearly all crops are subject to loss through deterioration. In an address to the Institute of Chemical Engineers, Doctor Browne called attention to a number of the more important ones. The losses to the sugar industry from deterioration of the harvested crop between field and factory, or from deterioration of the raw sugar between factory and refinery, amount each year to many millions of dollars. The same is true of many other agricultural commodities. The department has numerous projects under way in the field of loss prevention; among these may be mentioned the checking of the deterioration of paper and leather. Improvements in dehydration and other methods for reducing the spoilage of foods, the prevention of dust explosions, and the proofing of fabrics against damage by water, mildew, and fire.

Spontaneous Combustion.
A large number of unsolved chemical problems relate to this subject of loss prevention, according to Doctor Browne. The agricultural interests of the country suffer millions of dollars worth of damage each year from spontaneous combustion, but the chemical mechanism by which a mow of hay or a car of stock feed catches fire is not as yet explained. Less spectacular, but more generally destructive, is the deteriorative effect of atmospheric oxygen upon butter, paper, lard, leather, and other commodities.

Importance of Yield to Crop Production Costs

Investigators of the Cornell (N. Y.) experiment station have published the results of their efforts to obtain information on the production and costs of the principal farming crops grown in that state. The report contains much of interest regarding peas. "The cost per ton of peas," states L. J. Norton, "is very closely related to the yield per acre." Thus on 101 farms where yields averaged 2,138 pounds per acre, the return was $20 per acre more than on 81 farms averaging 1,492 pounds. Furthermore, on 80 farms averaging 2,988 pounds per acre, the increased return advanced to $52 per acre. These increased returns were produced at an average total cost of $2 per acre. The three factors that seemingly had the most to do with increasing the rate of yields, were fertilizer, manure and lime. It was found that the yield per acre advanced almost exactly in the same order as did the amounts of fertilizer and manure used, particularly the former.

Free Use of Fertilizer Increases Crop Profits

The Windsor county, Vt., farm bureau has announced the results of a test of the effects of various fertilizers on potatoes on the farm of K. H. Atwood at Bridgewater. In addition to generous dressings of stable manure, 400, 600 and 1,000 pounds of a 3-8-4 fertilizer, and 500 and 1,000 pounds of a 3-8-8 were compared with no fertilizer.

The largest yield and the largest net profit followed an application of 1,000 pounds per acre of a 3-8-4. County Agent C. J. Frink, however, basing his advice on previous tests and experience, recommends from 400 to 600 pounds of a high-analysis fertilizer, when liberal applications of stable manure also are made. "It is very profitable," he says, "to use somewhere near these quantities every year."

Multiplication of Weeds Is Something Dreadful

A single plant of pepper grass will produce 18,000 seeds; dandelion, 12,000; shepherd's purse, 37,000; wheat thistle, 7,000; common thistle, 65,000; camomile, 6,000; ragweed, 5,000; purslane, 375,000; plantain, 47,000; burdock, 63,000.

The importance of not allowing a single weed to produce seed cannot be urged too often. But, if that has been neglected, burning over the ground in the fall or winter, or before plowing in spring will destroy many weed seeds and save weeks of labor in raising the next crop.

Diversification of Farm Business Is Safest Plan

Diversification of the farm business by the production of several salable products, lessens the risk of loss from crop failure and low prices, promotes better utilization of teams and machinery, permits rotation of crops, and on the whole is conducive to the safety and stability of the enterprise.

Good Way to Clear Land.
In the novel method of clearing land adopted by a Minnesota farmer, the underground roots are burned away, freeing the stump above ground for use as firewood. At one side of each stump an excavation is made in the ground, and from this a hole is bored through the roots to a stovepipe set upright in the ground on the other side. When a fire is kindled in the excavation, the draft set up through the roots and the pipe causes the roots to be slowly consumed, until the stump may be toppled over quite unharmed.

USE OF MULES ON FARMS INCREASES

Washington Was the First to Breed Them in U. S.

Washington.—The ability of the mule to endure hardship and perform sterling service under adverse conditions has established him as a real asset in American agriculture. While the mule is essentially a draft animal, it is used widely for utility purposes, especially in the South. A smart, alert mule, with a long, free stride at the walk and a snappy, balanced trot is highly desired. Mules vary in height from 21 hands to 17½ hands and in weight from 600 to 1,600 pounds.

The importance and popularity of the mule as a work animal are attested by the greatly increased use of the animal in our farm operations. In 1910, the number of mules on farms and ranches was 4,209,769. The number on January 1, 1920, was 5,432,391, an increase, during the decade, of 1,222,622, or nearly 30 per cent. Of the 5,432,391 mules on farms in 1920 3,172,797, or nearly three-fifths, are in the nine cotton belt states. The only states outside the cotton belt having more than 175,000 head of mules are Missouri, with 389,045; Tennessee, 352,510; Kansas, 243,332, and Kentucky, 292,557. The total number of horses in the cotton belt states on January 1, 1920, was 2,855,257, or about 90 per cent as many horses as mules. The only cotton belt states having more horses than mules are Texas and Oklahoma.

Can Endure Hardships.
"The mule is a hardy work animal," says J. O. Williams in a bulletin of the United States Department of Agriculture. "While this humble creature responds to good treatment and gives best service under favorable conditions of feeding and management, it is his ability to endure hardship and to perform sterling service under adverse conditions that has established him so firmly in American agriculture. Those who are staunch supporters of the mule say that, in comparison with the horse, he will live longer, endure more work and hardship, require less attention and feed, is less liable to digestive disorders, lameness and disease, is more easily handled in large numbers, is less irritable and is more capable of performing work in the hands of a mediocre or poor horseman. Whether or not all these claims may be substantiated, it is a fact that the mule is well established as a work animal in those sections where climatic conditions are most severe, feed less abundant and horsemanship is not a prevailing art.

His Eccentricities.
"The mule is an animal with possibly more eccentricities and undeniable virtues than any other domestic animal. One would naturally expect from his heritage a rather unusual temperament requiring the most thoughtful treatment. The difficulty is to know how to handle the mule in order to keep the desirable qualities of his maternal ancestry in the foreground and to keep subservient the latent donkey characteristics. To treat consistently a conglomeration of stubbornness and willingness, temper and sullenness, contentment and restlessness, slyness and docility, faithfulness and waywardness, with no knowledge of which virtue or vice is going to assert itself next, is a problem which may well tax the qualities of the best horseman.

Must Be Treated Gently
"There are some peculiarities which belong to the mule alone. He does not like to be hurried, worried or cuffed about; to try to force him to do things against his will is practically impossible and only makes matter worse. The mule must be understood and gently but firmly persuaded to do things out of the ordinary. He is naturally suspicious of everybody who comes around him, and it can be readily observed that he never takes his eye off a person near by, and when the ears begin to wag a little the person watched had better be on the lookout. There seems to be a code system of ear signaling among mules that all understand. A mean mule can deftly handle his hind legs, and his forelegs are not be ignored. He has been known to handle his 'mitts' in a clever fashion.

Wrong and Right Way
"There is a wrong and a right way to lead a mule. A man who looks at a mule and lugs at his head will never make any progress. The mule will not be pulled. He will usually follow, however, if a man will walk away in the direction he desires to go. Neither can you 'bully' mules in going through tight places; they are somewhat like sheep, and if the leader can be induced to go the rest will follow.

"The importation of jacks, and consequently the production of mules, dates back to colonial times. About 1787 George Washington was presented with a jack by the king of Spain, which was used in the stud at Mount Vernon. Many good mules were produced in those days, and the value of the mule as a work animal was soon recognized by intelligent planters. It has been within the last forty years, however, that the production of mules has been an extensive enterprise and that much attention has been given to the rearing and selection of the best jack stock.

"The American jack of today is a composite of the bloods of some of the best foreign breeds, and in attaining the highest standards of excellence prevailing in the jack stock of America the breeders have emphasized the valuable utility points so much desired in the best jacks, such as size, weight, style, quality and action."

HE DECIDED TO GIVE UP "GINNY"

By MOLLIE MATHER
(© by Western Newspaper Union.)

LEANING against the tree trunk while the breeze ruffled his wavy hair, and troubled thought brought a frown to his handsome forehead, Armsdale decided to give up "Ginny." It really must be done before the Lorrimer should come with their guest to make a camping party in the mountain, which for months had been Armsdale's stopping place.

At first the appalling silence had worn wearily, the days filled in with sketching had not banished his boredom—then Armsdale came upon "Ginny"—"Ginny" in a dark blue cotton frock, golden lights flecking her coal black eyes as she glanced gravely up at him.

The winsome and brooding feminine, "Ginny" had a sphinx-like quality of sitting, half-absent to conversation, absently unconscious of the glowing world about her, her fathomless black eyes deep in reverie, the golden lights Armsdale so admired flashing suddenly as she glanced at one in awakening. Armsdale often brought about this swift awakening by an abrupt remark. "Ginny," he would accuse, "what is your mystery? Where are you in your absorbed silence?" She gave no returning smile to his banter. "Ginny's" rare smile piqued his interest; she would answer gravely: "My thoughts were not with you, 'Artist'." Her title, amused and pleased Armsdale—always he was just—"Artist."

He had first found "Ginny" seated on a fallen tree in an upper opening of the forest. Her face had been raised to the song of a bird, and he had noted at once the smallness of her brown hands, the neatness of the small feet, too, in their Indian moccasins.

Though "Ginny's" frock was of dark cotton, she wore about her throat a long string of red beads made from shining mountain berries.

He knew that he would make love to her, and he wondered if always she would dart away as she did when he first began to talk to her. He endeavored to hold her in conversation which he made an interesting lure with books of travel and adventure.

He was permitted to know little of her—the very name of "Ginny" came to him through the chance call of a woman. They had lingered in the woodland shade until the noon hour, then had come the sharp call: "Ginny! 'Ginny!'"

"Time for dinner," his wood nymph had said, and darted off.

He asked Harris that evening to make inquiry regarding the woman who had called from the clearing, and to find out, if possible, who might be this girl whose unsimiling face seemed, as time passed, to hypnotize his senses. Certain it was that the thoughtful gaze of "Ginny" haunted him long after he had left her presence.

Harris learned only that a man and his wife occupied a neatly fashioned log cabin on the upper opening. The house was often long closed and vacant, and the young woman also stopped there—whose name was "Ginny."

Armsdale ventured gentle questioning concerning "Ginny," and her life in the mountain. Sweet, inscrutable, she evaded reply. He was sorry for her; a lonely life for one young and fair as "Ginny." Yet, deliberately he planned to add to that sorrow by teaching her the lesson of love—to her later desolation.

Her continued companionship gave to him the answer he sought; for again "Ginny" came to his side—yielded even wonderingly to his kiss. He had laughed exultantly as she darted from his embrace; frightened for the time, he thought, amusedly. His amusement did not last. Overwhelmingly came the desire to see the woodland maid again; he had sought her eagerly, but after the caress she made no picture in the vagrant sunshine of the forest path.

So, still each day hopefully at the trysting place, Armsdale made his decision. He would give up "Ginny." When she must come again he would tell her that she might no longer seek him in the forest opening. Inexplicably against the thought came a memory flash of "Ginny's" somber eyes, the glint of gold in their depths that stirred his pulses. Poor little mountain maid, she would grieve for him in her desolation—these silent women were strange. But—the Lorrimer were coming, and with them—Helen Moreland, whose assured place in society, whose confident charm he might still consider worthy to claim his own. The artist arose in sudden eagerness, banishing unhappy thought of his determined task. "Ginny" stood before him. He stared—"Ginny," with an entrancing smile curling her red lips, as she wound the red beads about her fingers.

"The time has come," remarked this new "Ginny," as the wairus said, "to talk of many things. Mrs. Warring, with whom I am staying, tells me that you are to have guests; they may be better informed than you regarding your neighbors. Therefore, I may no longer keep my secret. I am Virginia Dornley, writer of books. Yes," she answered his stare of surprise—"author of 'The book.' Your friend, the physician, was admonished to make no mention of my presence here—or of my engagement to him. I came, you see, solely for work and reflection."

Armsdale caught the glint of gold in her backward glance—then he was alone.

A Picturization of Zane Grey's Famous Novel

Zane Grey's world-famed novel "To the Last Man" tells the story of a historic feud in Arizona. The picture version was filmed in that country under the supervision of the author and it constitutes an epic of Tonto Basin that will go far to convince the world that the romance of the vanishing frontier is imperishable. It is a screen masterpiece.

BETTER THAN SILVER AND GOLD.—Godliness with contentment is great gain. For we brought nothing into this world, and it is certain we can carry nothing out. And having food and raiment, let us therewith be content.—1 Tim. 6:6, 7, 8.

A Woman's House Plan.

It is really remarkable how few women architects there are. Every woman has a sneaking desire to build a house from her own plans. Occasionally one does, just so that she may have enough closets. Then she spends the rest of her life looking in them for burglars.—Life.

USE OF MULES ON FARMS INCREASES

Washington Was the First to Breed Them in U. S.

Washington.—The ability of the mule to endure hardship and perform sterling service under adverse conditions has established him as a real asset in American agriculture. While the mule is essentially a draft animal, it is used widely for utility purposes, especially in the South. A smart, alert mule, with a long, free stride at the walk and a snappy, balanced trot is highly desired. Mules vary in height from 21 hands to 17½ hands and in weight from 600 to 1,000 pounds.

The importance and popularity of the mule as a work animal are attested by the greatly increased use of the animal in our farm operations. In 1910, the number of mules on farms and ranches was 4,209,769. The number on January 1, 1920, was 5,432,391, an increase, during the decade, of 1,222,622, or nearly 30 per cent. Of the 5,432,391 mules on farms in 1920 3,172,797, or nearly three-fifths, are in the nine cotton belt states. The only states outside the cotton belt having more than 175,000 head of mules are Missouri, with 389,045; Tennessee, 352,510; Kansas, 243,332, and Kentucky, 292,857. The total number of horses in the cotton belt states on January 1, 1920, was 2,855,257, or about 90 per cent as many horses as mules. The only cotton belt states having more horses than mules are Texas and Oklahoma.

Can Endure Hardships.

"The mule is a hardy work animal," says J. O. Williams in a bulletin of the United States Department of Agriculture. "While this humble creature responds to good treatment and gives best service under favorable conditions of feeding and management, it is his ability to endure hardship and to perform sterling service under adverse conditions that has established him so firmly in American agriculture. Those who are staunch supporters of the mule say that, in comparison with the horse, he will live longer, endure more work and hardship, require less attention and feed, is less liable to digestive disorders, lameness and disease, is more easily handled in large numbers, is less irritable and is more capable of performing work in the hands of a mediocre or poor horseman. Whether or not all these claims may be substantiated, it is a fact that the mule is well established as a work animal in those sections where climatic conditions are most severe, feed less abundant and horsemanship is not a prevailing art.

His Eccentricities.

"The mule is an animal with possibly more eccentricities and undeniable virtues than any other domestic animal. One would naturally expect from his heritage a rather unusual temperament requiring the most thoughtful treatment. The difficulty is to know how to handle the mule in order to keep the desirable qualities of his maternal ancestry in the foreground and to keep subservient the latent donkey characteristics. To treat consistently a conglomeration of stubbornness and willingness, temper and sullenness, contentment and restlessness, slyness and docility, faithfulness and waywardness, with no knowledge of which virtue or vice is going to assert itself next, is a problem which may well tax the qualities of the best horseman.

Must Be Treated Gently

"There are some peculiarities which belong to the mule alone. He does not like to be hurried, worried or cuffed about; to try to force him to do things against his will is practically impossible and only makes matter worse. The mule must be understood and gently but firmly persuaded to do things out of the ordinary. He is naturally suspicious of everybody who comes around him, and it can be readily observed that he never takes his eye off a person near by, and when the ears begin to wag a little the person watched had better be on the lookout. There seems to be a code system of ear signaling among mules that all understand. A mean mule can deftly handle his hind legs, and his forelegs are not be ignored. He has been known to handle his 'mitts' in a clever fashion.

Wrong and Right Way

"There is a wrong and a right way to lead a mule. A man who looks at a mule and lugs at his head will never make any progress. The mule will not be pulled. He will usually follow, however, if a man will walk away in the direction he desires to go. Neither can you 'bully' mules in going through tight places; they are somewhat like sheep, and if the leader can be induced to go the rest will follow.

"The importation of jacks, and consequently the production of mules, dates back to colonial times. About 1787 George Washington was presented with a jack by the king of Spain, which was used in the stud at Mount Vernon. Many good mules were produced in those days, and the value of the mule as a work animal was soon recognized by intelligent planters. It has been within the last forty years, however, that the production of mules has been an extensive enterprise and that much attention has been given to the rearing and selection of the best jack stock.

"The American jack of today is a composite of the bloods of some of the best foreign breeds, and in attaining the highest standards of excellence prevailing in the jack stock of America the breeders have emphasized the valuable utility points so much desired in the best jacks, such as size, weight, style, quality and action."

HE DECIDED TO GIVE UP "GINNY"

By MOLLIE MATHER

(© by Western Newspaper Union.)

LEANING against the tree trunk while the breeze ruffled his wavy hair, and troubled thought brought a frown to his handsome forehead, Armsdale decided to give up "Ginny." It really must be done before the Lorrimer should come with their guest to make a camping party in the mountain, which for months had been Armsdale's stopping place.

At first the appalling silence had worn wearily, the days filled in with sketching had not banished his boredom—then Armsdale came upon "Ginny"—"Ginny" in a dark blue cotton frock, golden lights flecking her coal black eyes as she glanced gravely up at him.

The winsome and brooding feminine. "Ginny" had a sphinx-like quality of sitting, half-absent to conversation, absordedly unconscious of the glowing world about her, her fathomless black eyes deep in reverie, the golden lights Armsdale so admired flashing suddenly as she glanced at one in awakening. Armsdale often brought about this swift awakening by an abrupt remark. "Ginny," he would accuse, "what is your mystery? Where are you in your absorbed silence?" She gave no returning smile to his banter. "Ginny's" rare smile piqued his interest; she would answer gravely: "My thoughts were not with you. 'Artist'." Her title, amused and pleased Armsdale—always he was just—"Artist."

He had first found "Ginny" seated on a fallen tree in an upper opening of the forest. Her face had been raised to the song of a bird, and he had noted at once the smallness of her brown hands, the neatness of the small feet, too, in their Indian moccasins.

Though "Ginny's" frock was of dark cotton, she wore about her throat a long string of red beads made from shining mountain berries.

He knew that he would make love to her, and he wondered if always she would dart away as she did when he first began to talk to her. He endeavored to hold her in conversation which he made an interesting lure with books of travel and adventure.

He was permitted to know little of her—the very name of "Ginny" came to him through the chance call of a woman. They had lingered in the woodland shade until the noon hour, then had come the sharp call: "'Ginny'! 'Ginny'!"

"Time for dinner," his wood nymph had said, and darted off.

He asked Harris that evening to make inquiry regarding the woman who had called from the clearing, and to find out, if possible, who might be this girl whose unsmiling face seemed, as time passed, to hypnotize his senses. Certain it was that the thoughtful gaze of "Ginny" haunted him long after he had left her presence.

Harris learned only that a man and his wife occupied a neatly fashioned log cabin on the upper opening. The house was often long closed and vacant, and the young woman also stopped there—whose name was "Ginny."

Writer Declares Cat Teaches Man Repose

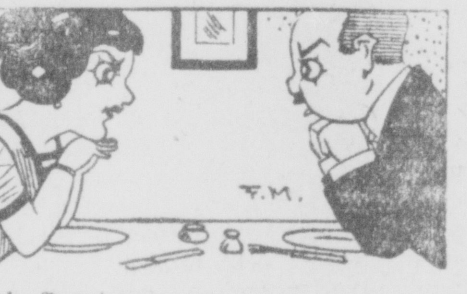

I believe that every household should contain a cat, not only for decorative and domestic values, but because the cat in quiescence is both a rebuke and an inspiration to irritable, tense, restless and tortured men and women.

In spite of the fact that there are a hundred books published every year in which human beings are told to "relax"—tremendous and continued energy seems to be required in order to keep quiet—very few men, women or children have mastered even the elementary principles of repose.

The bodies of children and the minds of adults keep immobile only by conscious and continuous effort, which is a condition very different from rest; we try just as hard to rest as we try to keep going. I think it was in a famous book called "Power Through Repose" that I read the statement that when the ordinary mortal gets into bed he does not really relax; he tries to hold the bed down. Many in bed will discover that they have their fists clenched.

Now, when the cat decides to take its repose it not only lies down; it pours its body out on the floor like a glass of water. It is restful merely to behold it. The average man looks up from the morning paper and roars at the folly and stupidity of our lawmakers; then he happens to see the family cat, who is either totally uninterested, or, if thoughtful, is thinking only of breakfast. The cat seems to put to the householder every day the Emersonian question—why so hot, little man?—William Lyon Phelps, in Scribner's.

Pleasure in Solitude

How few people are really good company for themselves! Most of us, when left alone for more than the briefest space of time, are bored. This is not in itself a grave matter; for most people are not often left alone. Their real misfortune is that they lack the curious eye, the active imagination that can create for them anywhere and at any time—even in society—a solitude, with the outlook and the mood that solitude best fosters. It is only the poet, active or potential, for whom the vacant or the pensive mood means pleasure.

The outward shows of sky and earth.
Of hill and valley, he has viewed;
And impulses of deeper birth
Have come to him in solitude.

In common things that round us lie
Some random truths he can impart.
The harvest of a quiet eye
That broods and sleeps on his own heart.

—North American Review.

How Did She Know?

The lights were turned low in the cozy library. She sat in the big armchair, her heart a-flutter and her brain in a whirl.

Bozo was to visit her that night. And he would take her in his arms. Perhaps they would be married—

The bell—

Bozo entered, his hair slicked back, and his bow tie on an elastic band. He advanced toward the table, and removed three cigars from his vest pocket. Then he turned with outstretched arms.

"Stop," she sobbed. "You have loved before."—Phoenix.

Don't Be in a Hurry

The club bore rushed angrily into the secretary's office, sputtering and giving vent to excited and incoherent exclamations.

"I've been grossly insulted," he shouted, when he had calmed down sufficiently.

"How so?" inquired the secretary, who had heard such complaints before.

"Just now, during lunch, that young Dawson drawled: 'Look here, I'll give you $50 if you'll resign from this club.' All the members heard him. Now, what ought I to do about it?"

Without the least hesitation came the reply from the secretary:

"Hold on for a better offer."

A Waste of Breath

A young typist had just been engaged by a solicitor. She had never done regular work before, and was rather nervous.

The lawyer settled himself in his chair and began dictating a brief. He had pegged away for about ten minutes when the girl stopped, a horrified look on her face.

"Would you mind saying that all over again?" she asked, with eyes full of tears.

"Why?"

"I forgot to put any paper in the machine."

Writer Declares Cat Teaches Man Repose

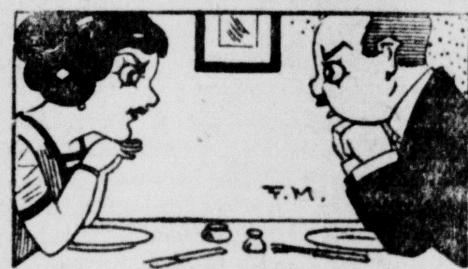

I believe that every household should contain a cat, not only for decorative and domestic values, but because the cat in quiescence is both a rebuke and an inspiration to irritable, tense, restless and tortured men and women.

In spite of the fact that there are a hundred books published every year in which human beings are told to "relax"—tremendous and continued energy seems to be required in order to keep quiet—very few men, women or children have mastered even the elementary principles of repose.

The bodies of children and the minds of adults keep immobile only by conscious and continuous effort, which is a condition very different from rest; we try just as hard to rest as we try to keep going. I think it was in a famous book called "Power Through Repose" that I read the statement that when the ordinary mortal gets into bed he does not really relax; he tries to hold the bed down. Many in bed will discover that they have their fists clenched.

Now, when the cat decides to take its repose it not only lies down; it pours its body out on the floor like a glass of water. It is restful merely to behold it. The average man looks up from the morning paper and roars at the folly and stupidity of our lawmakers; then he happens to see the family cat, who is either totally uninterested, or, if thoughtful, is thinking only of breakfast. The cat seems to put to the householder every day the Emersonian question—why so hot, little man?—William Lyon Phelps, in Scribner's.

Pleasure in Solitude

How few people are really good company for themselves! Most of us, when left alone for more than the briefest space of time, are bored. This is not in itself a grave matter; for most people are not often left alone. Their real misfortune is that they lack the curious eye, the active imagination that can create for them anywhere and at any time—even in society—a solitude, with the outlook and the mood that solitude best fosters. It is only the poet, active or potential, for whom the vacant or the pensive mood means pleasure.

The outward shows of sky and earth. Of hill and valley, he has viewed; And impulses of deeper birth Have come to him in solitude.

In common things that round us lie Some random truths he can impart. The harvest of a quiet eye That broods and sleeps on his own heart. —North American Review.

How Did She Know?

The lights were turned low in the cozy library. She sat in the big armchair, her heart a-flutter and her brain in a whirl.

Bozo was to visit her that night. And he would take her in his arms. Perhaps they would be married—The bell—Bozo entered, his hair slicked back, and his bow tie on an elastic band. He advanced toward the table, and removed three cigars from his vest pocket. Then he turned with outstretched arms.

"Stop," she sobbed. "You have loved before."—Phoenix.

Don't Be in a Hurry

The club bore rushed angrily into the secretary's office, sputtering and giving vent to excited and incoherent exclamations.

"I've been grossly insulted," he shouted, when he had calmed down sufficiently.

"How so?" inquired the secretary, who had heard such complaints before.

"Just now, during lunch, that young Dawson drawled: 'Look here, I'll give you $50 if you'll resign from this club.' All the members heard him. Now, what ought I to do about it?"

Without the least hesitation came the reply from the secretary:

"Hold on for a better offer."

A Waste of Breath

A young typist had just been engaged by a solicitor. She had never done regular work before, and was rather nervous.

The lawyer settled himself in his chair and began dictating a brief. He had pegged away for about ten minutes when the girl stopped, a horrified look on her face.

"Would you mind saying that all over again?" she asked, with eyes full of tears.

"Why?"

"I forgot to put any paper in the machine."

CLARKSBURG FIRE

Edward Garrison Home Completely Destroyed—Department Called.

The home of Edward Garrison, at Clarksburg, caught fire this morning at 7:30 o'clock, from a defective flue and burned to the ground. It was a five room frame structure. The flames were communicated to the adjoining residence of Walt Skinner and it was damaged considerably. The Garrison house was owned by Ira Brown, of Washington C. H. The flames became so hot that nothing of value was saved in the Garrison home.

The fire department of Chillicothe was called and responded. The village has no fire engine.

"The Store That Treats You Right"

There Lots of Room to Turn Around!

The purpose of this ad is to get Circleville men ready for the greatest style news that ever visited men's clothing.

This Spring, the clothes are looser-----no, not the baggy peg-top looser suits that went with mandolins and college caps in 1904.

Entirely different! They are roomier in the coats, vests and trousers---but it is the kind of looseness that will look better on you than you have looked for years.

On display now for men to see, try on and pass along until they get ready to purchase---

CONFIDENCE

The most beautiful of all human relationships are based on CONFIDENCE. Love is based on confidence, friendship is based on confidence, happy marriages are based on confidence; and so, confidence is the highest aim a business institution can achieve, because it introduces into the processes of buying and selling, something of the unselfish quality of those sacred human relationships that are untouched and uncontaminated by money. This store never wants to be guilty of such bad taste as to claim perfection, but it makes no secret of its ambition to foster and deserve at all times the confidence of its customers.

There is no higher success than TO BE BELIEVED IN!
